MANAKAMANA TEMPLE

RECONSTRUCTION & RESTORATION PROJECT

Preserving our heritage for future generations of Nepalis worldwide

The Story of Manakamana

Manakamana is the temple of fulfilled wishes.

For generations, families have visited this sacred site with prayers, hopes, and heartfelt desires — believing that the goddess listens and blesses those who come with sincerity.

Even today, diaspora families across the world pray to Manakamana during festivals, challenges, and milestones.

The connection remains strong, no matter the distance; and together, we rebuild our heritage, for now and for the future.

Why the Diaspora Matters

This generation of Nepali diaspora is the last deeply connected to Nepal's temples, festivals, and cultural traditions.

Future generations may not feel the same responsibility or emotional bond.

If we do not preserve our heritage now, it may not be preserved later.

Why Reconstruction Is Needed

- The original structure has aged and requires full restoration
- Traditional carvings and sacred art need preservation
- Ritual spaces need modernization while keeping authenticity
- The community needs safe, accessible facilities
- A cultural archive is needed for long-term preservation

What the Project Includes

- Main temple reconstruction
- Sacred carvings & iconography restoration
- Auxiliary shrines
- Cultural library & archive
- Sacred garden
- Digital transparency systems
